Tonfa tactics

INTRODUCTION

Perhaps no other weapon in karate is as practical, powerful, and versatile as the tonfa, yet no other weapon is so little known and used. Why? I feel that the reasons are twofold. First, while the tonfa is powerful, it is not flashy and can- not be used for that fun and games demonstrated with the nunchaku by so many supposed weapons experts. The crowds love it and those who don't know any better imagine that these are real weapons men. In reality they are only baton twirlers who kick. If you could twirl the tonfa like a gun, set it on fire, and dance with it as you can the nunchaku, it would greatly increase in popularity. Second, the tonfa is not easily carried on the body, like a knife or nunchaku, so those who feel insecure unless they are carrying a weapon at their side don't even try to understand the tonfa. This helps account for its lack of popularity. I hope this book will change all of that.

The tonfa is a truly remarkable weapon; it has the advantages of a baseball bat, a club, a hammer, a blunt axe, and body' armor. When the tonfa is held down the forearm, the arm is reinforced with three inches of rock-hard wood. No other weapon short of a sword can penetrate your blocks when you use the tonfa to reinforce them. A nunchaku, knife, bat, or bo will bounce off the tonfa. When held by the handle and flipped with speed and power, the tonfa has the same deadly potential as a baseball bat or a club moves faster, and is easier to control. When held at its top using the handle as a bludgeon, the tonfa has the power of an axe or hammer. With two tonfa you can stop the attacks of several men armed with other weapons, as demonstrated in the final chapter of this book. It is truly a powerful, versatile weapon.

One last word: State laws vary, so be sure to find out from your local police department if it is legal to carry a tonfa in your car or on your person. Always remember that the tonfa is a self-defense and karate weapon and should only be used in karate class or, in cases of extreme emergency, to protect your life or the lives of others.

Tonfa tactics

This book has been written as a training and information manual for people and students who may find that they have to defend themselves in the street from attack by those who may have such weapons as knives, bats, clubs, broken bottles, chains, or all of the above.

It is intended to be a training manual not in how to use the weapons of the street, but rather in how to defend your- self against unwarranted and unnecessary attack. There are a few instructions in offensive techniques, but they are meant to be used to control the attacker till the police come or till help can arrive.

I do not condone nor intend that this book be a manual for those who would use weapons in the street to harm their fellow man for any reason.

Holding the Tonfa

Position I (basic position): Hold the tonfa by its handle, below the forearm. Be sure to lock the thumb over the fingers and keep the wrist straight so that the tonfa stays down on the forearm.

MARTIAL ARTS WEAPONS ASSOCIATION

Tonfa tactics

Position 2: Hold the tonfa by its end. In this position the tonfa is used as a club or hammer.

Position 3: Hold the tonfa at its top. In this position the tonfa is used as a stick and is very effective for chokes and pressure points.

MARTIAL ARTS

Tonfa tactics

Position 4: Hold the tonfa by its handle with the end forward. In this position the tonfa can be used to thrust, parry, and jab

Position 5: Hold the tonfa by its handle, on top of the tonfa is used for blocking and thrusting

FLIPPING THE TONFA

One of the major power strikes of the tonfa comes from flipping the stick and smashing it into vital areas of the body. It is very, important to master this flip. To power in the flip one must always cock or bend the arm slightly so that power of movement may begin. As the arm begins to swing forward the wrist should be curled backward to effect the smashing motion. When the wrist has finally flipped out straight, the arm should be straight and locked, the hips secure, and shoulders powerful. Use the entire body for power; almost like a backhand shuto.

Tonfa tactics

Close-up of the flipping action: Notice that the wrist is straight and the tonfa is extended down the arm. As the flipping motion starts, the wrist is curled backward for more power. The arm is then flung forward with speed and power.

Do not allow the tonfa to twist too much in your hand; this lessens power. Instead, make a very slight movement of your grip, and allow the tonfa to twist very little.

BASIC BLOCKS

Down block or low groin block: In this position one uses a typical karate groin block, but the tonfa is held down the side of the forearm for more strength.

This block is the same as the down block, except that the tonfa is extended out from the arm to give the block more distance.

Tonfa tactics

X groin block: Both tonfa are thrust down to the groin area to effect a powerful block, usually against a kick.

X block extended: The tonfa are again thrust down, but extended to give the block more distance.

Tonfa tactics

Middle block: The tonfa is snapped across the chest to protect the middle of the body.

Middle block extended: The tonfa is snapped across the chest and extended for more blocking distance.

CHOKES:

The Tonfa is very effective as a choking weapons. It is fast and powerful and hard to escape from, as these chokes illustrate. We will assume you already have disabled or surprised the attackers so that you can begin these chokes as shown

X Choke: Slip the tonfa in front of the attacker's neck with your forearm on the back of his neck. Reach over with the other hand, forming an X in the back, and pull back to choke him out.

MARTIAL ARTS
WEAPONS ASSOCIATION

Tonfa tactics

Back choke: Lay the tonfa in front of the attacker's throat, with your hand gripping the end; the handle is used to keep the tonfa next to the neck. Reach up with your other arm and, keeping your back hand next to his head, pull hard to choke him.

MARTIAL ARTS
WEAPONS ASSOCIATION

Tonfa tactics

Forearm choke: Place the tonfa under the attacker's throat and pull his head down (usually by the hair). Keep his head under your armpit area for support, reach down with the other hand and pull up, choking him.

MARTIAL ARTS

Tonfa tactics

Arm choke: Place the tonfa over the attacker's shoulder, then up and under his armpit. Now reach down, grab the end of the tonfa and pull up, keeping his body next to yours for support.

Defense 1: Face the attacker in a modified cat stance. As he punches out with his left fist, let the tonfa slip in your grip and strike him in the elbow area with its top.

MARTIAL ARTS

This will allow you to curl his arm backward; then reach over and lock his arm with your free hand. The arm can easily be broken in this position.

You can finish him with an upward smash of your right tonfa

5. The Tonfa against other weapons

The tonfa, because of its versatility and power can be used very effectively against weapons such as the nunchaku, knife and bo. The hard wood is most effective for stopping the power of the nunchaku or the blade of a knife, and the handle gives distance and power to effect a deadly countermove.

BASIC TONFA BLOCKS AGAINST THE NUNCHAKU

People who have never used the tonfa to block the nunchaku might assume that the nunchaku would break your arm, even though the tonfa is blocking. Quite the opposite is often true-the tonfa usually breaks the nunchaku. You will never be hurt if you always let the nunchaku hit only the wood of the tonfa, and not the skin or bones of your body.

THE TONFA AGAINST THE KNIFE

The tonfa is very effective against the knife. The hard wood is used to stop the blade attack, and the handle allows for power and distance in your counterattacks. Here are some typical blocks of the tonfa against the knife.

Overhead block 1: rise a rising block with the tonfa down the forearm.

Tonfa tactics

Overhead block 2: Use an extended rising block. This gives greater distance from the attack, but is more dangerous.

Overhead block 3: Use both tonfa in a rising X block.

MARTIAL ARTS

Tonfa tactics

Middle slashing block 1: Use the tonfa in the extended middle blocking position to give more distance from the attack.

Middle slashing block 2: Use an extended tonfa against the blade of the knife. This block requires more skill, but usually knocks the knife from the attacker's hand.

MARTIAL ARTS

Tonfa tactics

X middle block: Both tonfa are crossed in front of the body and onto the arm of the knife wielding hand. A very effective and powerful block.

Inside block: The knife hand is smashed with an extended tonfa strike.

THE TONFA AGAINST THE BO

The tonfa is very effective against the bo. The hard wood can absorb most of the shock of the strikes; a powerful and effective counterstrike can then be made.

Bo defense 1: Face the attacker in the modified cat stance. The attacker swings the bo for a hard middle smash, which you block with the left tonfa; then counter with a side kick into the ribs to finish him.

MARTIAL ARTS

Tonfa tactics

Bo defense 2: If the attacker tries a middle smash, counter with a left middle block to stop it. Step in for a leg sweep.

Tonfa tactics

If he reacts with an overhead strike, counter with a high flat block with your left tonfa, then execute the foot sweep, knocking him to the ground. Finish him with a head smash with the left tonfa.

Bo defense 3: If the attacker tries an overhead smash, counter with a rising X block using both tonfa.

UNARMED AGAINST THE TONFA

If you practice and are fast and powerful, you can defend yourself against a tonfa attack. Face the attacker in the modified cat stance. If he strikes at your head with his left tonfa, quickly stop the strike with a hard rising block of your right hand.

Now counter with a viscous left to the jaw and a hard right to the ribs for the finish.

He counters with a hard left strike, which you block with a hard rising right block. Then counter with a snap kick in- to his groin to finish.

Unarmed defense 3: The attacker makes a right thrust, you block with a left middle block

Unarmed defense 5: The attacker strikes with the right tonfa, which you meet with a left rising block. As you block, grab and press his arm down to his side.

Step on the back of his knee, forcing him to the ground, where you take the tonfa from his hand and smash his head with it.

Unarmed defense 6: The attacker makes a hard left flip which you block with-a hook-crescent kick of your left foot, knocking his arm down in front of him.
